Self-Reflection Essay for Product Review

An assignment was given to students to review any product they had in their house. I did a product review on a model of a fossilized Homo heidelbergensis known as Kabwe 1. As I reviewed my essay there are some things that I feel I should have done better. I noticed in my writing that I strayed away from describing the product and instead gave a description of my interest in anthropology. Since I didn't take the time to plan out my essay, it wasn't as well organized as I had hoped for. Next time, organizing my information prior to can help me know how I wish to structure my writing. My lack of organization had led me to forget to add a picture of my model and the original fossil of Kabwe 1. Despite being as descriptive as I could, placing an image of my model would have illustrated a face to my description. The purpose of adding an image of the original fossil was to show how similar the model and the actual fossil resembled each other. When it pertained to my background history, I should have given an explanation of what 3D printers use to make these models. I realize it would have been beneficial to give some information on the technology that goes into creating fossilized replicas. While my approach to this essay was poorly done, after having it reviewed I noticed it's flaws and saw where I needed to grow. I intend to start planning out my work and have it peer reviewed so I can go about improving my writing.
